REGISTRATION OPEN NOW
Dear Friends,

When CSI was located in the J.C. Fox Building on Main Street in Hailey, I seized the opportunity to take college classes locally. Not only were the classes I took directly transferable to the college where I earned my Bachelor of Fine Arts degree, but they were taught by excellent local instructors, they were accessible, and they were affordable.

I have often thought of the time I spent in those early CSI classes, the friends I made there, the instructors who inspired me, and how much I have personally grown since then. Never in my wildest dreams could I have imagined that I would return to CSI almost 20 years later as the director of the Blaine County Center. If CSI had not been available to me all those years ago, I would not be where I am today.

It was at CSI’s Blaine County Center that I began my journey into the world of higher education. I am honored to be in the leadership position that I find myself in now, and I am grateful to have found a place where I can continue to learn and grow. American writer, Washington Irving said, “One of the greatest and simplest tools for learning more and growing is doing more.” Please take the time to explore the many ways that you can learn more, grow more, and do more at CSI. Let’s grow together!

ANIMALS

Basic Dog Obedience Boot Camp
This boot camp is for both you and your dog! Spend six weeks developing effective training techniques and forging a mutually-beneficial relationship between you and your dog. The class will cover basic commands: sit, down, attention, leave it, stay, and heel (on short and long leads). The instructor, Barb Williams, graduated from the Animal Behavior College and trains hunting dogs, search and rescue dogs, and pets. A buckle collar, six-foot leash, 20-30 foot line, and tasty treats are required for this class. Dogs should have a current vaccination record and should not have fear or aggression issues with other dogs.

Mixed Media Painting: Still Life, Landscape and Portrait
Mitsuru Brandon, M.F.A., will introduce you to a variety of artistic media to help you develop your own original paintings. In the first class, the instructor will present an array of painting examples and as you experiment with various painting media, you will begin to develop a project of your own. In the second class, you will try different color combinations to learn basic color theory while creating a still life painting. In the third class, you will use unusual materials and effects to create a textural landscape painting. In the fourth class, you will learn how to paint face features – eyes, nose, and mouth – for a portrait. Beginners are welcome and advanced students will refresh and refine their skills. Supply list will be provided.

Will Dark Money Determine Who Controls the U.S. Senate?
Since the Supreme Court’s Citizen United decision in 2010 there has been a significant increase in campaign financing, with the identity of many contributors not disclosed, and the candidate with the largest coffers not always winning. This lecture examines the nature of new campaign systems, sources, and how new campaign finance regulations could sway the 2014 elections. It also touches on the need for an informed electorate.

Paul B. Firstenberg, J.D., is an instructor at the Baruch College School of Public affairs. He received his law degree from Harvard Law School and his degree in Public Affairs from Princeton University. Paul has extensive domestic and international legal, policy, and business experience.

Inside the Impeachment of President Nixon
The only successful and reputable impeachment of a president in American history occurred forty years ago this summer. Paul Ahern served as the chief staff person to a key member of the House Judiciary Committee that conducted the inquiry that led to the impeachment and removal from office of President Richard Nixon. Paul will remind the audience of why Nixon was impeached and describe how the Congress acted to remove him from office in a fair and bipartisan manner that was broadly accepted by the American people. Paul will tell stories from inside the Judiciary Committee proceedings, including several profiles of courage where ordinary congressmen did what they believed was right, even though it threatened their political careers.

Paul L. Ahern, Jr., J.D., has extensive experience as a nonprofit consultant in addition to his career as a trial lawyer. Currently, he teaches at the Evans School of Public Affairs at the University of Washington.
