FEB 10
The Toano Road
With Shauna Robinson
The completion of the transcontinental railroad on May 10, 1869, spawned the construction of four significant freight and stage routes into southwestern and southern Idaho from northern Utah, and Nevada. These roads, originating in railroad towns along the Central Pacific Railroad, established a vital link for goods shipped from the East Coast and California to the mining camps and towns in the southern reaches of Idaho Territory. One of these major roads was the Toano Road, which was surveyed in 1870 and promoted as a fast-freight road. By following this route across northern Nevada to its confluence with the Oregon Trail west of today's Hagerman, freighters could reach Boise in a “speedy” six days. Its ten years of existence had an important impact on the early mining towns and settlements of southern and southwestern Idaho.

From 2003-2005, the Twin Falls County Historic Preservation Commission mapped and photographed the route as it looks today. Please join Shauna as she takes you “road-hunting” for the Toano Road in Idaho.

MAR 10
Gooding College
With Kelly Kast
From 1917 to 1938, Gooding Idaho was home to an excellent college of higher education. Gooding College was started by the Methodist Episcopal Church and was considered one of the finest in Idaho. In this presentation, learn about the fascinating history of the college including its patriotic role in the community during World War I, its tribulations during the Spanish Flu Pandemic, and perhaps most importantly, its role in shaping the City of Gooding and surrounding communities. The college folded in 1938 and the buildings were given to the state to be used as a tuberculosis hospital. What remains of the colleges is now privately owned. During its heyday, Gooding College had a voice respected by the community it served and the students it taught.
